

2009 Tax Law Changes – Opportunities for Nearly Everyone

In 2009, numerous new and expanded deductions and credits came into being for a broad cross-section of taxpayers: College tax benefits for parents and students; energy credits for homeowners who are going green; and even tax breaks for home buyers and car buyers.

Following is a summary of these and other key changes taxpayers will find when they start preparing their 2009 federal income tax returns.

Note: See Fact Sheet 2010-6 (Pg 6 of 9) for more information on the first-time homebuyer credit and Fact Sheet 2010-7 (Pg 8 of 9) for details on the making work pay credit.

American Opportunity Credit Helps Pay for First Four Years of College

More parents and students can use a federal education credit to offset part of the cost of college under the new American Opportunity Credit. This credit modifies the existing Hope credit for tax years 2009 and 2010, making it available to a broader range of taxpayers. Income guidelines are expanded and required course materials are added to the list of qualified expenses. Many of those eligible will qualify for the maximum annual credit of $2,500 per student.

In many cases, the American Opportunity Credit offers greater tax savings than existing education tax breaks. Here are some of its key features:

- Tuition, related fees and required course materials, such as books, generally qualify. In the past, books usually were not eligible for education-related credits and deductions.
- The credit is equal to 100 percent of the first $2,000 spent and 25 percent of the next $2,000. That means the full $2,500 credit may be available to a taxpayer who pays $4,000 or more in qualified expenses for an eligible student.
- The full credit is available for taxpayers whose modified adjusted gross income (MAGI) is $80,000 or less ($160,000 or less for filers of a joint return). The credit is reduced or eliminated for taxpayers with incomes above these levels. These income limits are higher than under the existing Hope and lifetime learning credits.
- Forty percent of the American opportunity credit is refundable. This means that even people who owe no tax can get an annual payment of the credit of up to $1,000 for each eligible student. Existing education-related credits and deductions do not provide a benefit to people who owe no tax. The refundable portion of the credit is not available to any student whose investment income is taxed, or may be taxed, at the parent's rate, commonly referred to as the kiddie tax. See Publication 929, Tax Rules for Children and Dependents, for details.

2009 Tax Law Changes – Opportunities for Nearly Everyone

Though most taxpayers who pay for post-secondary education qualify for the American Opportunity Credit, some do not. The limitations include a married person filing a separate return, regardless of income, joint filers whose MAGI is $180,000 or more and, finally, single taxpayers, heads of household and some widows and widowers whose MAGI is $90,000 or more.

There are some post-secondary education expenses that do not qualify for the American Opportunity Credit. They include expenses paid for a student who, as of the beginning of the tax year, has already completed the first four years of college. That's because the credit is only allowed for the first four years of a post-secondary education.

Students with more than four years of post-secondary education still qualify for the lifetime learning credit and the tuition and fees deduction.

For details on these and other education-related tax benefits, see Publication 970, Tax Benefits for Education.

Many Energy Improvements Qualify for Expanded Tax Credits

People who weatherize their homes or purchase alternative energy equipment may qualify for either of two expanded home energy tax credits: the non-business energy property credit and the residential energy efficient property credit.

Non-business Energy Property Credit: This credit equals 30 percent of what a homeowner spends on eligible energy-saving improvements, up to a maximum tax credit of $1,500 for the combined 2009 and 2010 tax years. This means that a homeowner can get the maximum credit by spending at least $5,000 on qualifying improvements. Homeowners must make the improvements to an existing principal residence; this tax credit is not available for new construction. Due to limits based on tax liability, other credits claimed by a particular taxpayer and other factors, actual tax savings will vary. The cost of certain high-efficiency heating and air conditioning systems, water heaters and stoves that burn biomass all qualify, along with labor costs for installing these items. In addition, the cost of energy-efficient windows and skylights, energy-efficient doors, qualifying insulation and certain roofs are also eligible for the credit, though the cost of installing these items does not count.

Residential Energy Efficient Property Credit: Homeowners going green should also check out a second tax credit designed to spur investment in alternative energy equipment. The residential energy efficient property credit, equals 30 percent of what a homeowner spends on qualifying property such as solar electric systems, solar hot water heaters, geothermal heat pumps, wind turbines, and fuel cell property. Qualifying property purchased for new construction or an existing home is eligible for the credit. Generally, labor costs are included when calculating this credit. Also, no cap exists on the amount of credit available except in the case of fuel cell property.

2009 Tax Law Changes – Opportunities for Nearly Everyone

Not all energy-efficient improvements qualify for these tax credits. For that reason, homeowners should check the manufacturer's tax credit certification statement before purchasing or installing any of these improvements. The certification statement can usually be found on the manufacturer's Web site or the product packaging. Normally, a homeowner can rely on this certification. The IRS cautions that the manufacturer's certification is different from the Department of Energy's Energy Star label, and not all Energy Star labeled products qualify for the tax credits. Use Form 5695, Residential Energy Credits, to figure and claim these credits.

New Vehicle Purchase Incentive

New car buyers can deduct the state or local sales or excise taxes paid on the purchase of new cars, light trucks, motor homes and motorcycles. There is no limit on the number of vehicles that may be purchased, and eligible taxpayers may claim the deduction for taxes paid on multiple purchases. However, the deduction is limited to the tax on up to $49,500 of the purchase price of each qualifying new vehicle. Qualifying new vehicles must be purchased, not leased, after Feb. 16, 2009, and before Jan. 1, 2010.

Taxpayers who buy a new vehicle may deduct state or local fees or taxes that are similar to a sales tax whether or not their state imposes a sales tax. To qualify, the fees or taxes must be assessed on the purchase of the vehicle and must be based on the vehicle's sales price or as a per-unit fee.

The amount of the deduction is reduced for taxpayers whose modified adjusted gross income is between $125,000 and $135,000 for individual filers and between $250,000 and $260,000 for joint filers. This deduction is available regardless of whether a taxpayer itemizes deductions on Schedule A. Itemizers claim the deduction on either Line 5 or Line 7 of Schedule A. See the Schedule A instructions for details. Non-itemizers claim the deduction on new Schedule L, Standard Deduction for Certain Filers.

Tax Credits Increased for Low and Moderate Income Workers

More workers and working families are eligible for the Earned Income Tax Credit. In particular, expanded benefits are now available for those with three or more qualifying children and married couples. The EITC helps taxpayers whose incomes are below certain income thresholds, which in 2009 rise to:

- $48,279 for families with three or more qualifying children
- $45,295 for those with two or more children
- $40,463 for people with one child
- $18,440 for those with no children

One in six taxpayers can claim the EITC, which, unlike most tax breaks, is refundable, meaning that individuals can get it even if they owe no tax and even if no tax is withheld from their paychecks.

2009 Tax Law Changes – Opportunities for Nearly Everyone

In addition, the earned income formula for the additional child tax credit is revised for tax years 2009 and 2010. As a result, more low and moderate income families qualify for the full $1,000 child tax credit. See Form 8812 for more information.

Standard Deduction Increases for Most Taxpayers

Nearly two out of three taxpayers choose to take the standard deduction rather than itemizing deductions such as mortgage interest and charitable contributions. The basic standard deduction is:

- $11,400 for married couples filing a joint return and qualifying widows and widowers, a $500 increase compared with 2008
- $5,700 for singles and married individuals filing separate returns, up $250
- $8,350 for heads of household, up $350.

Higher amounts apply to blind people and senior citizens. The standard deduction is often reduced for a taxpayer who qualifies as someone else's dependent.

In addition, eligible taxpayers can further increase their standard deduction by any of the following three deductions:

- State or local real estate taxes paid in 2009
- A net disaster loss reported on Form 4684 and
- State or local sales or excise taxes on the purchase of a qualifying new motor vehicle.

Use new Schedule L, Standard Deduction for Certain Filers, to claim these additional deductions.

AMT Exemption Increased for One Year

For tax-year 2009, Congress raised the alternative minimum tax exemption to the following levels:

- $70,950 for a married couple filing a joint return and qualifying widows and widowers, up from $69,950 in 2008
- $35,475 for a married person filing separately, up from $34,975
- $46,700 for singles and heads of household, up from $46,200

Under current law, these exemption amounts will drop to $45,000, $22,500 and $33,750, respectively, in 2010. Form 6251 and the AMT calculator provide more information.

Other Changes

The standard mileage rate for business use of a car, van, pick-up or panel truck is 55 cents for each mile driven. The standard mileage rate for the cost of operating a vehicle for medical reasons or as part of a deductible move is 24 cents per mile. The rate for using a car to provide services to charitable organizations is set by law and remains at 14 cents a mile.

The value of each personal and dependency exemption is $3,650, up $150 from 2008. Most taxpayers can take personal exemptions for themselves and an additional exemption for each eligible dependent. This is one of more than three dozen individual and business tax provisions that are adjusted each year to keep pace with inflation. A complete rundown of these changes can be found in 2009 Inflation Adjustments Widen Tax Brackets, Change Tax Benefits.

The amount of taxable investment income a child can have without it being taxed at the parent's rate is $1,900, up $100 from 2008. For details, see Form 8615.

There are several modifications to the definition of a qualifying child. For example, the child must be younger than the taxpayer, unless the child is totally and permanently disabled. These changes affect who can claim various tax benefits including the dependency exemption, child tax credit, credit for child and dependent care expenses, head of household filing status and the EITC. See the instructions for Forms 1040 or 1040a for more information.

A new rule applies to the noncustodial parent in situations where a couple is divorced or legally separated after 2008. To claim a child as a dependent, the noncustodial parent must attach Form 8332 or a similar statement to his or her tax return. For pre-2009 divorces and separations, the noncustodial spouse still has the option of attaching certain pages from the divorce decree or separation agreement, instead of Form 8332. See Form 8332 for further details.

A $3,500 or $4,500 voucher or payment made for such a voucher under the CARS 'cash for clunkers' program is not taxable to the consumer buying or leasing a new car.

Unemployment benefits up to $2,400 received in 2009 are tax free for unemployed workers. Every person who receives unemployment benefits can exclude the first $2,400 of these benefits on their return. Unemployment benefit amounts over $2,400 are taxed.

Tax Credits for Home Buyers

Fact Sheet 2010-06, January 2010

Tax Credit in General

For first time homebuyers, there is a refundable credit equal to 10 percent of the purchase price up to a maximum of $8,000 ($4,000 if married filing separately). A first-time homebuyer is an individual who, with his or her spouse if married, has not owned any other principal residence for three years prior to the date of purchase of the new principal residence for which the credit is being claimed.

There are several situations in which a taxpayer cannot claim the credit:

- The taxpayer is a nonresident alien;
- The taxpayer purchases a home located outside the United States;
- The taxpayer sells the home or if it stops being the taxpayer's principal residence in the year the taxpayer purchased the home;
- The taxpayer receives the home, or any portion of the home, as a gift or as an inheritance; and
- The taxpayer exceeds the income limits.

The Worker, Homeownership, and Business Assistance Act of 2009 extended and expanded the tax credit for first time homebuyers that had been created in 2008. The new law extends the deadline for qualifying home purchases from Nov. 30, 2009, to April 30, 2010. If a buyer enters into a binding contract by April 30, 2010, the buyer has until June 30, 2010, to settle on the purchase.

Members of the Armed Forces and certain federal employees serving outside the U.S. have an extra year to buy a principal residence in the U.S. and still qualify for the credit. An eligible taxpayer must buy or enter into a binding contract to buy a home by April 30, 2011, and settle on the purchase by June 30, 2011.

Purchases made after Nov. 6, 2009

Taxpayers should be aware of some changes to the law that apply to home purchases after Nov. 6, 2009, the date of enactment of the new law.

The new law expands the tax credit to include not just first-time buyers but also long-time residents who buy a new principal residence. They are eligible for a credit of 10 percent of the purchase price up to a maximum credit of $6,500. A long-time resident is an individual who, with his or her spouse if married, has owned and used the same home as a principal residence for any period of 5 consecutive years during the 8-year period ending on the date of purchase of the new principal residence for which the credit is being claimed.

Income Limitation

For people who purchase homes after Nov. 6, the full credit will be available to taxpayers with a modified adjusted gross income (MAGI) up to $125,000, or $225,000 for joint filers. MAGI is your adjusted gross income plus the total of certain foreign earned income. Those with MAGI between $125,000 and $145,000, or $225,000 and $245,000 for joint filers, are eligible for a reduced credit. Those with higher incomes do not qualify. However, for homes purchased before Nov. 7, 2009, existing income limits remain in place. The full credit is available to taxpayers with MAGI up to $75,000, or $150,000 for joint filers. Those with MAGI between $75,000 and $95,000, or $150,000 and $170,000 for joint filers, are eligible for a reduced credit. Those with higher incomes do not qualify.

2009 Tax Law Changes – Opportunities for Nearly Everyone

Several new restrictions apply to purchases that occur after Nov. 6:

- Dependents are not eligible to claim the credit;
- No credit is available if the purchase price of a home is more than $800,000; and
- A purchaser must be at least 18 years of age on the date of purchase.

Credit Claimed on a 2009 or 2010 Tax Return

For all qualifying purchases in 2010, taxpayers have the option of claiming the credit on either their 2009 or 2010 tax returns.

A new version of Form 5405, First-Time Homebuyer Credit, is expected to be available by Jan. 15, 2010, for taxpayers who purchased a home after Nov. 6; this new version of the form must be used to claim the credit. Likewise, taxpayers claiming the credit on their 2009 returns, no matter when the house was purchased, must also use the new version of Form 5405. Taxpayers who claim the credit on their 2009 tax return will not be able to file an electronic return, but instead will need to file a paper return.

Credit Claimed on a 2008 Tax Return

The maximum credit was originally $7,500 ($3,750 if married filing separately). A taxpayer who chose to claim the credit on the 2008 tax return for a home purchased in 2009 and who also did not use the February 2009 revision of Form 5405 may now be able to claim the additional $500 on an amended 2008 tax return.

Selling the Home and Other Events that Require Repaying the Credit

Taxpayers who bought homes in 2009 or 2010 and sold them within a 36 month period that begins on the purchase date, must repay the credit. They also must repay the credit if they convert the home to a business or rental property or the lender forecloses on the home. The taxpayer repays the credit by including the amount of the credit as additional tax on the tax return for the year in which the repayment event occurs.

However, taxpayers do not have to repay all or a portion of the credit under the following circumstances:

- Taxpayers sell the home to someone who is not related to them, the repayment in the year of sale is limited to the amount of gain on the sale;
- If the home is destroyed, condemned, or disposed of under threat of condemnation and the taxpayer acquires a new principal residence within 2 years of the event, the taxpayer does not have to repay the credit; and
- If, as part of a divorce settlement, the home is transferred to a spouse or former spouse, the spouse who receives the home is responsible for repaying the credit if required.

Most Workers Need to File New Schedule M; Making Work Pay Credit Offers Tax Savings Up to $800

Fact Sheet-2010-07, January 2010

Two special tax credits offer taxpayers an opportunity to lower their tax bill or increase their refunds this filing season. Both credits are claimed on new Schedule M, Making Work Pay and Government Retiree Credits.

The making work pay credit helps millions of workers and self-employed individuals, while the government retiree credit especially targets former government workers who aren't receiving Social Security benefits. Income limits apply to the making work pay credit but not to the government retiree credit. Both credits are refundable — meaning that those eligible can get them even if they owe no tax. Here are further details on each of these credits.

Making Work Pay Credit

Most eligible taxpayers qualify for the maximum making work pay credit of $800 for a married couple filing a joint return or $400 for other taxpayers. The credit equals 6.2 percent of earned income up to the maximum amount. Thus, any eligible couple whose earned income is $12,903 or more qualifies for the $800 maximum credit. Other taxpayers qualify for the $400 maximum if their earned income is $6,451 or more.

For most workers, the credit is based on the taxable wages reported to them on Forms W-2. Self-employed individuals figure the credit using the net profit or loss they receive from a business or farm. Additional calculations are necessary for some taxpayers, including those who have net business losses, wages from work performed while a prison inmate or foreign earned income. More information, including a worksheet, can be found in the instructions for Schedule M.

Some taxpayers are not eligible for the making work pay credit, including:

- Joint filers whose modified adjusted gross income (MAGI) is $190,000 or more.
- Other taxpayers whose MAGI is $95,000 or more.
- Anyone who can be claimed as a dependent on someone else's return.
- A taxpayer who doesn't have a valid social security number.
- Joint filers, if neither spouse has a valid Social Security number.
- Nonresident aliens.

Other taxpayers qualify for the credit but must reduce the amount of the credit they claim, including:

- Joint filers whose MAGI is more than $150,000 but less than $190,000.
- Other taxpayers whose MAGI is more than $75,000 but less than $95,000.
- Taxpayers who received an economic recovery payment. This special $250 payment was made during 2009 to recipients of Social Security benefits, supplemental security income (SSI), railroad retirement benefits or veterans disability compensation or pension benefits.
- Taxpayers who claim the government retiree credit.

See Schedule M and its instructions for details.

2009 Tax Law Changes – Opportunities for Nearly Everyone

Though all eligible taxpayers must file Schedule M to claim the making work pay credit, most workers got the benefit of this credit through larger paychecks, reflecting reduced federal income tax withholding during 2009.

Government Retiree Credit

This credit is designed to provide a benefit equivalent to the economic recovery payment to those government retirees who did not qualify for these payments. Retired federal, state or local government employees who receive pensions in 2009, based on work not covered by Social Security, are eligible to claim this credit. The credit is $250. For joint filers the credit is $500 if both spouses are retired government employees who receive pensions based on work not covered by Social Security. The credit cannot be claimed by an individual if he or she received an economic recovery payment during 2009. See Schedule M and its instructions for details.
